

Bridgeport Village Installs OpConnect EV Charging Stations

(Portland, OR) October 4, 2012 – OpConnect, LLC, a visionary leader in electric vehicle (EV) charging station technology, announced today the installation of its smart EV charging system at Bridgeport Village in Tigard, Oregon. The two charging stations feature high-resolution touch screens with graphical instructions and help videos as well as a unique quad port design that lets up to eight EVs charge simultaneously. The charging stations are powered by OpConnect's EV Charging Network and are available for use to any Bridgeport Village shopper.

The continued efforts of Bridgeport Village to offer unparalleled services and guest amenities to its' visitors are exemplified in the addition of the OpConnect EV charging stations. "We're thrilled with the addition of the EV charging stations and are proud to offer our customers an environmentally-friendly commuting option in addition to our many bike racks," said Sarah Sumpter, Marketing Manager for Centercal Properties, LLC.

"Installation of EV charging infrastructure at shopping malls, such as Bridgeport Village, as well as other public locations, is essential for continued EV adoption. Bridgeport Village's progressive adoption of new technology will prove rewarding by attracting high-income EV drivers to its stores while also improving their [carbon] footprint," said Dexter Turner, OpConnect CEO.

OpConnect has installed its innovative charging system in locations throughout the U.S., most recently installing stations at the Doubletree by Hilton hotel in Portland, Oregon and at multiple Enterprise Rent-a-car locations in California.
